Father Briody, Pastor of St. Joseph's, Dead

Illness of Year Became Critical Three Weeks Ago—Had Been In Priesthood Thirty Five Years, Twelve as Pastor of Local Church Which Flourished Under Him.

The Rev. John H. Briody, for over twelve years the well beloved pastor of St. Joseph's Church, died at the rectory on Wall street at 4 o'clock this morning, aged 63 years, thirty-five years of which had been spent in the Roman Catholic priesthood.

For a year Father Briody had been suffering with serious organic troubles that incapacitated him from participating in his pastoral duties, and about three weeks ago his malady became so serious that he had been practically unconscious during these past days.

Father Briody had enjoyed a singularly successful pastorate at St. Joseph's Church where he built the substantial school building and the convent home for the sisters, which are free and clear of debt. Last December when it was announced that the buildings had been freed of all incumbrances the people of the parish presented him with a purse of $2,700 at a public meeting held in St. Joseph's Hall.

He was a man who was most devoted to his pastoral duties and occupied a place of deep affection in the hearts of his people. His friendships extended beyond the zone of his parish to all classes who admired his manly virtues and his unfailing geniality.

Father Briody was born February 20, 1859, in New York city. He was graduated from Manhattan College, New York, in June of 1883, and entered St. Joseph's Seminary at Troy, N. Y., to study for the priesthood. He was ordained December 19, 1887. Among his classmates were the Right Rev. Mgr. Chidwick, chaplain of the ill-fated Maine, the Right Rev. William Livingston, one of the consultors of the diocese, and the Rev. Thomas O'Keefe of St. Benedict's Church, New York.

His first assignment was to St. Peter's Church, Barclay street, New York, where he served under the pastorate of the Right Rev. James McGean. For thirteen years Father Briody served in the lower district in New York city, and was then assigned to the pastorate of St. Joachim's Church in Beacon, where he served efficiently for ten years. From Beacon he was assigned to the pastorate of St. Joseph's Church in this city, where he rounded out thirty-five years as a priest.

During his pastorate in Kingston Father Briody had become widely known as a churchman, and was one of the best known priests in the Hudson river valley. He was a man who always took an active part in the religious life of the community, and under his administration the parish of St. Joseph's Church has grown to be one of the most important in this vicinity. Not only was he held in high esteem by the people of his own faith but by the members of other religious bodies. His unfailing good nature and his Christian spirit endeared him to all he came in contact with.

Father Briody is survived by two sisters, Mrs. McKinsey, who made her home with him, and Mrs. Blake of New York city.

The funeral Mass will be celebrated by the Right Rev. Mgr. Chidwick, of St. Joseph's Seminary, with the Rev. Michael Duffy, of St. Raphael's Church, New York city, as deacon, and the Rev. Arthur J. Kenny, of St. Monica's Church, New York, as sub-deacon. The panegyric will be delivered by the Rev. Thomas O'Keefe, of St. Benedict's Church, New York. The Holy Office will be sung by the priests at 8 o'clock on the evening before the day of interment, which will be held in Calvary Cemetery on Long Island. The Right Rev. Bishop Dunn, auxiliary of New York city, will preside.

The body of the dead priest will lie in the rectory until the afternoon before interment, and each evening the Holy Name Society of the church will act as a guard of honor.

Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock the body of Father Briody will be carried in solmen procession from the rectory to St. Joseph's Church, where the Divine Office will be recited. The funeral will be held from the church Friday morning at 10 o'clock. At the close of the services the body will be taken to Rhinecliff and thence by train to New York city where interment will be made in Calvary Cemetery.

ROUTINE MATTERS BEFORE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Except That Clubwomen Are Granted Use of Auditorium.

An adjourned meeting of the board of education was held Monday evening at the high school. Routine business was transacted, the payroll for the month of February was audited and a number of bills ordered paid.

A request from the Federation of Women's Clubs of the city for the use of the high school auditorium for a concert in March was received and the permission was granted. The board then adjourned.

LOCKWOOD ACTING G. O. P. SECRETARY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 28.—George B. Lockwood, former Indiana newspaper editor, and now publisher of the National Republican, was appointed today as acting secretary of the Republican National committee to succeed Clarence B. Miller, who died recently in Minnesota.

Announcement of the appointment was made by John T. Adams, Republican national chairman, after consultation with President Harding.

CANFIELD NAMED DELEGATE AT LARGE

To Rivers and Harbors Congress at Washington.

Former Mayor Canfield has been appointed by Governor Miller one of six delegates at large to represent the state at the annual convention of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress to be held in Washington on Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

He has also been appointed by Governor Miller a delegate at large to represent the state at the annual convention of the National Merchant Marine Association to be held in Washington on Friday and Saturday.

Questions of importance involving the waterways will be considered. The subject which is expected to hold first place in the discussion is that of the St. Lawrence River Ship Canal. It is expected that both the friends and opponents of this project will be present in large numbers. A large number of states from the middle west section are strongly arrayed in favor of the ship canal. New York state alone has been bearing the brunt of the opposition. Governor Miller will speak in opposition to it on Wednesday afternoon.

A banquet will be held on Thursday evening and Vice-President Coolidge will preside. It is expected that President Harding will attend. Among others who will address the convention are Ambassador Jusserand of France, Secretary of Commerce Hoover, Secretary of Navy Denby, General Beech, chief of engineers, and Senator Ransdell, the former president of the congress.

Princess Mary Weds In Pomp and Splendor

Ceremony at Noon an All-British Affair Resplendent With Trappings of Royalty and Sixteenth Century—Happy Bride Promises to "Love, Honor and Obey," But Retains Title.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Feb. 28.—Amidst all the pomp and ceremony of old world royalty, Her Royal Highness Princess Mary, only daughter of King George and Queen Mary, was married to Viscount Lascelles, heir to the Earl of Harewood, in Westminster Abbey today. It was the first marriage in the reigning royal family in nearly 29 years and was a social event of almost unprecedented splendor, brilliance and impressiveness.

The ceremony took place at noon in the presence of the most varied and representative assemblage that ever attended a royal wedding. All members of the royal family were present except the Prince of Wales, heir to the throne, who is in India. The magnificent old cathedral with its great vaulted roof, its gorgeous traceries, its mighty pillars and its beautiful stained windows, formed a fitting background for the nuptial ceremonies, the brilliant uniforms of army and navy officers and the dazzling gowns of the women. The bride and groom and the royal family rode in state from Buckingham Palace to the abbey and the sight of the happy girlish face in the famous old glass coach, gave a thrill of pleasure to the vast multitude of men and women who lined the streets.

It was an all-British wedding, according to wishes of the royal family. The bridesmaids were English girls. The groom's best man was Sir Victor Audley Falconer MacKenzie, a captain in the Scots Guards and a brother in arms in war time. Contrary to custom foreign royalties were not invited.

The Most Rev. Randall Thomas Davidson, archbishop of Canterbury and the highest prelate of the Anglican Church, officiated. The orthodox ritual was followed by which the princess promised to "love, honor and obey" her husband.

The princess was given away by her father, King George.

There were about 2,250 guests within the abbey.

Those who held superstitions about the weather and it was reported that Queen Mary did so, had ground for propitious predictions. It had been stormy early in the morning, but the skies cleared off and it was clear with a brisk spring-like breeze when the nuptial procession left the palace for the abbey.

Many rich Americans had come to London, many of them social aspirants who hoped to get within the abbey, but all had to content themselves with a view of the marriage procession, if they were lucky enough to be able to purchase sightseeing space along the route.

The actual wedding ceremony came as the climax to a glorious Cinderella-like pageant, resplendent with glorious and riotous colors. It was a fete of purple and fine linen, silk, satins and brocades, ermines and furs and flashing jewels, splendid uniforms and flashing weapons all surmounting the gilded coaches which carried the principals and their families.

In a modulated voice the archbishop of Canterbury read the Episcopal ceremony for royalty, which was not greatly changed from the sixteenth century.

The bride and groom in firm but low voices pledged their vows. Only those sitting nearby heard the response of the principals to the clergyman. The archbishop then made a brief address, felicitating the couple and pronouncing his blessing and the blessing of the church upon them.

A wedding breakfast was served at the Buckingham Palace following the ceremony with less than 100 guests present. Later in the day the bride and groom departed at Paddington Station on their honeymoon.

The bride retains her title of "Princess Mary."

Holy Cross Midgets Win.

The Holy Cross Midgets defeated the Cyrus Fire Monday evening at the former's court by an 18-10 tally. The game was very fast and clean, with A. Barley handing out the decisions. The score at half time was 11 to 6 with the Midgets in front. In the Midgets' line-up were Kuehn, Lebert and Vande, forwards; Sagendorf, center; and DuBois and Merrill, guards. For the Cyrus team Bunse, Flanagan and Barry played forwards; McKeown, center, and Hurley and Glennon, guards.

Our Growing Population.

The following births have been reported to the board of health:

Mr. and Mrs. James Sweeney, 228 Hasbrouck avenue, a son, James, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. John Corcoran, 23 Post street, a son, Raymond.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Koskie, Rodney street, a son, Thomas.

Retail Store Closing.

All of the retail stores which have been closing at 5:30 o'clock each day, except Saturdays, will continue to close at that time until further notice.

RHINEBECK FERRY IN OPERATION

After being laid up for several weeks on account of the ice the ferry Transport resumed regular trips between Kingston and Rhinebeck today. A track through the ice was broken Monday by the tug Rob. The ferry is having no difficulty in making trips.

Navigation between Newburgh and New York was resumed today when the steamer Poughkeepsie of the Central Hudson Line left Newburgh for down river points. With the ice gradually wearing away in the river it is only a question of a short time when the Central Hudson Line will resume trips between this port and New York.

While hardly a pound of ice was cut from the Hudson river last winter this winter has seen the ice crop one of the best in years and all that was needed was harvested by the ice companies. Due to the fact that artificial ice is being used to a great extent in New York city there is not as much demand for natural ice as in other years.

STEPHENS BAILED, KEATOR JAILED

John Stephens who has been in jail for some time having been held by Justice of the Peace Henry D. Abeel of the town of Saugerties to await the action of the grand jury in connection with chicken stealing in the vicinity of Malden, was released on $1,000 bail on Monday. It is alleged that Stephens has been connected with previous disappearances of chickens.

Lon Keator charged with grand larceny in the second degree, he too being charged with purloining chickens, to wit: nineteen Rhode Island Reds from the premises of Harry Britt across the Esopus creek in the town of Ulster, was taken by Undersheriff Haulenbeck before Justice of the Peace James E. Kennedy on the Plank road. Monday afternoon he was arraigned and through his counsel, William D. Brinnier, Jr., a further adjournment was taken until March 27. Keator claims that he did not steal Britt's chickens. Bail in $200 was fixed and Keator was brought back to jail to remain until he furnishes a bond or final disposition is made of his case.

CREATING INTEREST HERE IN VAUDEVILLE

In order to interest Kingston audiences especially in vaudeville, Manager Gildersleeve sent out a number of invitations to Kingston's representative women to attend the afternoon performance on Monday afternoon, of the Keith vaudeville performers, following the comedy photoplay, "The Girl in the Taxi." While the dancers, Chad and Monte Huber elicited much applause, the Premier Quartet of male voices, was decidedly the most popular, being recalled several times. The vaudeville program closed with a soprano solo which was excellent and a decidedly comedy skit.

HIGH SCHOOL FOR FEDERATION CONCERT

The Federation of Women's Clubs have secured the High School Auditorium for the Patricolo concert to be given by them on the evening of Tuesday, March 7, for the purpose of raising funds to inaugurate the movement for a community house in Kingston and other civic work. Patricolo, the famous Italian-American pianist, will be supported by Clara Auwell, harpist and Carro Greene, soprano. It has been a matter of regret that Mr. Dodge has not given any of his big concerts here this year, but this concert has his commendation.

D. A. R. Meeting.

Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., will hold its March meeting at the Chapter House on Thursday afternoon of this week at 3 o'clock, with the customary local board meeting preceding it. The Misses DuBois will have charge of the program which will be decidedly unique. A paper on "Colonial Needlework," will be read, and there will be an exhibition of Colonial samplers. The hostesses will be Mrs. Edgar Powley and Mrs. Thomas Lebert.

Forrest Arrested.

Officer Fout Monday evening arrested L. J. Forrest on a charge of parking his car in front of the opera house on Fair street. The hearing was adjourned until later.

CANAL TERMINAL BILL INTRODUCED

Senator Charles W. Walton Monday evening introduced a bill in the state senate providing for the appropriation of $1,893,000 for the construction of barge canal terminals along the Hudson river in Kingston, Poughkeepsie, Newburgh and Yonkers. The same measure was introduced last year but failed to pass.

LEAGUE MILK FOR MARCH LOWER

Announcement made by the Board of Directors of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association Saturday recommends the prices to be paid for March milk somewhat lower than the prices paid for February. These prices are as follows: $2.52 for Class 1-A which is milk sold to consumers in bottled form, $1.75 for Class 1-B which is milk sold to consumers in bulk form, usually in 40-quart cans; $1.50 for Class 2 which is milk sold in the form of sweet cream and ice cream; Class 3 includes milk sold in form of sweetened condensed and evaporated milk and the price for this will be governed as before by the current market price for butter plus a differential of 25c per hundred pounds; Class 4 includes milk made into butter and American cheese, the price of which will be based as heretofore on the current market quotations.

These prices are for 3 per cent milk in the 201-210 mile zone and vary with the usual differentials of freight and butter fat. These reductions in prices are made necessary on account of the increase in the production of milk which always begins at this season and which seems to be larger than usual this year.

CHAMPION PIG STICKER SEEKS A SEPARATION.

Stephen Mackey Has Not Lived With Wife in Five Years.

In special term in Poughkepsie on Saturday, Justice Seeger granted $100 counsel fee but no alimony in the case of Stephen V. Mackey against Bertha V. Mackey, alleged to be living with Elias Halstead on a farm west of Marlborough. Mackey and his wife have not lived together for the last five years, and by a decree issued by Justice Morschauser a year ago the custody of their three children was given over to a grandmother. The cemetery in Marlborough is mentioned by the husband as the scene of an incident leading to his determination to sue for a divorce. Jacob A. Decker of Newburgh is his attorney, Gains C. Bolin of Poughkeepsie representing the wife. Mackey is a general laborer who does odd jobs during the winter, and in summer is employed on the state roads. He is known as the "champion pig sticker of Ulster county." Mrs. Mackey last year gave birth to a fourth child, of which Mackey denies the parentage, and which was not mentioned in the application for alimony.

SOUGHT CAPITAL HERE; NOW IN BANKRUPTCY

United Auto Stores Inc., Have Liabilities of $1,500,000.

The receivers for the United Auto Stores, Inc., which failed in Philadelphia last Thursday have announced that they will attach the Long Island home and every visible asset of Edward B. F. Carrier, president of the concern for the benefit of the creditors. Liabilities of the corporation were listed at $1,500,000 according to a petition filed in Federal Court by stockholders asking a receivership.

Meanwhile a petition asking a receivership for the United Guaranty Corporation, said to have been organized by Carrier as an agency for selling stock in the auto stores company, has been filed in Federal court.

Representatives of the firm were in Kingston a short time ago attempting to interest local capital in the business.

NURSING CLASS PUT OVER UNTIL MONDAY

Owing to the fact that tomorrow is Ash Wednesday and that there has been so many requests to do so the free nursing class has been postponed from that evening to a later date when the evening will be devoted for the most part to the subject of healthy food.

Pastor Asked To Return.

The Rev. R. M. Denniston has been invited to return to Saugerties for the fifth year, as pastor of the Methodist church. This action was taken unanimously by the official board at the fourth quarterly conference, held Sunday afternoon. District Superintendent Rev. George W. Grinton presided at the conference and he was requested to urge Bishop Anderson to send the Rev. Mr. Denniston back to Saugerties.

Hi-Y Auxiliary.

A postponed weekly meeting of the Hi-Y Auxiliary will be held at the Y. M. C. A. on Wednesday evening at 7:30. Lawrence H. French of Hurley will speak on a subject of great interest to girls and Mrs. French will be the honored guest of the evening. Refreshments will be served.

Harding Presents Plan To Stimulate Shipping

Congress Told How to Subsidize American Marine Through Liberalization of Laws and Taxes and Making of Loans at Low Interest Rate—Would Sell Remaining Government Ships.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 28.—President Harding went before a joint session of congress today with a recommendation that the government end its "costly experiment" on the shipping business, grant a subsidy to American shipping interests and by so doing, pave the way for the rebuilding of a great American merchant marine as the second line of the nation's naval defense.

With his recommendation President Harding laid before congress a plan complete down to the last detail, of how this can be accomplished.

In part he said:

"When addressing the congress last December I reported to you the failure of the executive to carry out the intent of certain features of the merchant marine act of 1920, notably the provision for the notice of cancellation of all commercial treaties which hindered our grant of discriminating duties on imports brought to our shores in American ships. There was no doubt about high purpose of congress to apply this proven practice to the upbuilding of our merchant marine. It had proven most effective in the earlier days of American shipping; it had, at various times, demonstrated its effectiveness in the upbuilding of commercial shipping for other nations.

"The success of the earlier practice for this republic came at a time when we had few treaties, when our commerce was little developed, its supersedure by reciprocity in shipping regulations, and the adoption of other methods of upbuilding merchant marines, through various forms of government aid, and the century of negotiation of commercial treaties, all combined to develop a situation which should lead to endless embarrassment if we denounced our treaties. We should not only be quite alone in supporting a policy long since superseded through the growing intimacy of international relationships, but we should invite the disturbance of those cordial commercial relations which are the first requisite to the expansion of our commerce abroad.

"Contemplating the readiness of congress to grant a decreased duty on imports brought to our shores in American bottoms, and facing the embarrassments incident to readjustment of all treaty arrangements, it seemed desirable to find a way of applying suitable aid to our shipping, which the congress clearly intended, and at the same time avoid the embarrassment of our trade relationships abroad.

"The recommendation of today is based wholly on the commendable intent of congress. The proposed aid of the government to its merchant marine is to have its chief source in the duties collected on imports. Instead of applying the discriminating duty to the specific cargo, and thus encouraging only the inbound shipment, I propose that we shall collect all import duties, without discrimination as between American and foreign bottoms, and apply the heretofore proposed reduction to create a fund for the government's aid to our merchant marine. By such a program we shall encourage not alone the carrying of inbound cargoes subject to our tariffs, but we shall strengthen American ships in the carrying of that greater inbound tonnage on which no duties are levied, and, more important than these, we shall equip our merchant marine to serve our outbound commerce, which is the measure of our eminence in foreign trade.

"It is interesting to note, in connection with the heretofore proposed plan of discriminating tariffs on imports, carried to our shores in American bottoms, that the total value of all dutiable imports for 1920, in all vessels, was $1,985,865,000, while the cargoes admitted free of duty, on which no discrimination was possible, were valued at $3,115,958,000. The actual tonnage comparison is even more significant from the viewpoint of cargo carrying, because the dutiable cargoes measured, in round numbers, 16,000,000 tons, and the non-dutiable cargoes were 25,000,000 tons. The larger employment, by two and a half times, was in non-dutiable shipments.

"Continued trade must be reciprocal. We cannot long maintain sales where we don't buy. In the promotion of these exchanges, we should have as much concern for the promotion of sales as for the facilitation of our purchases. There is not a record in all history of long maintained eminence in export trade, except as the exporting nations developed their own carrying capacity.

"No story of national development is more fascinating or so full of romance as that of developing capacity for the exchanges of commerce. Expanding civilization may be traced over the avenues of exchanging cargoes. No matter how materialistic it may sound, nations have developed for themselves and have influenced the world almost precisely as they have promoted their commerce. We need not refer to the armed conflicts which have been incident thereto. When commerce has been destroyed fading glories have attended.

"It will avail nothing to attempt even the briefest resume of our own efforts to re-establish that American importance in commerce carrying on the high seas which was recorded in the earlier days of the republic. The aspiration is nation-wide. The conflict between two schools of political thought heretofore has defeated all efforts to employ the governmental aid which other nations found advantageous while we held aloof and the terms 'subsidy' and 'subvention' were made more or less hateful to the American public. But the nationwide desire to restore our merchant marine has outlived all defeats and every costly failure.

"Eight years ago the aspiration found expression in a movement to have the government sponsor an enterprise in which individual genius seemingly had failed. It would be difficult correctly to appraise the policy, because the world war put an end to all normal activities. Before we were involved our shipyards were suddenly turned to feverish and costly activities by the call of the allied powers for shipping without which they could not hope to survive. American energies were applied to construction for others, as we had never dreamed of doing for ourselves. When we were later engaged we trebled and quadrupled the output on our own account. There was the call for ships, and ships, and yet more ships, and we enlarged old yards and established new ones without counting the cost. We builded madly, extravagantly, impractically, and yet miraculously, but we met a pressing need and performed a great service.

"A people indifferent to the vital necessity of a merchant marine to the national defense, ungrudgingly expended at five times the cost of normal construction, and appropriated billions where millions had been denied before. We acquired vast tonnage. Some of it is suited to the peace service of expanded commerce. Some of it, much of it, may be charged to the errors and extravagances of war time anxiety and haste. The war program, and that completion of contracts which followed because such a course seemed best to those then charged with responsibility gave us something more than 12,000,000 gross tonnage, not counting the folly of the wood construction at a total outlay of approximately three and one half billions of dollars.

"We thus became possessed of the vehicles of a great merchant marine. Not all of it was practical for use in the trans-Oceanic trades; little of it was built for the speed which gives the coveted class to outstanding service. But here was vast tonnage for cargo service; and the government, in the exceptional call of commerce, which immediately followed the war, sought the establishment of shipping lines in every direction calculated to enhance our foreign trade and further cement our friendly relations.

"The movement lacked in most cases that inherent essential to success which is found in individual initiative. It was rather a government experiment, where lines were established in high hope and little assurance, because the public treasury was to bear the burden. There was the mere suggestion of private enterprise, inasmuch as allocations and charters were made under which private management was to share in profits and private interests were paid to make the experiment though the government was to bear all the losses. I forbear the detailed recital. The misadventure was so unfortunate that when the present administration came into responsibility the losses were approximately $16,000,000 a month and to the cost of failure was added the humiliation of ships libeled in foreign ports.

"In spite of all the later losses in operation, however, it is quite beyond question that our abundance of American tonnage was mainly responsible for our ability to share in the good fortunes of world trade during the two years immediately following the war. In all probability the losses we have sustained in other shipping activities were fully compensated to the American people in saving of ocean freights in that period.

"Today we are possessed of vast tonnage, large and very costly experience, and the conviction of failure. It is fair to say that a mistaken policy was made more difficult by the unparalleled slump in shipping which came late in 1920, and prevailed throughout the year so recently closed. It was the inevitable reflex of the readjustments which follow a great war, and there were heavy losses in operations which had to be met by long established and heretofore successful shipping lines and ships built at top war

"I'm afraid we are going to lose our money, Abner."

"I hope not, Mary; I think not. When we decided to go into this business we agreed to stay by it to the last. It is a long way from a failure."

"Yes," sighed Mrs. Vance, "but the anxiety and slow worry is wearing you down."

It was a peculiar position in which the Vances found themselves. Two months previously they had sold out a little general store business that had given them a bare living for twenty years and enabled them to give their only daughter, Helen, an excellent musical education.

A relative in the South had been the cause of a sudden determination on the part of these worthy, credulous people that had altered the whole current of their lives. He had made a lucky investment in a motion picture show and was fast acquiring a fortune.

"We'll sell out, find a nice, respectable location in some pretty home town and go into the business," decided Mr. Vance.

So, pride and novelty carried the Vances away from their usual sober judgment and here they were now, discussing the results as proprietors of the "Palace" photo playhouse, at Malden.

The Vances had arranged some cozy living rooms at the rear of the playhouse.

"What was that?" suddenly exclaimed Mrs. Venice.

"It's Helen!" cried her husband, and ran to the door, and his daughter burst into the room.

"What is it?" gasped her mother in alarm.

"I—stumbled over a man—maybe dead, I don't know!" shuddered Helen.

"A prowler or some one wandered up from those vile drinking dens on the river," decided Mr. Vance. "I'll go and see."

He returned in a few moments staggering under the great weight of a helpless human form.

"Oh, dear! dear!" exclaimed the motherly Mrs. Vance, after a glance at the white pulseless face of the unconscious stranger—"a young man, almost a boy! Abner, this is pitiful!"

Helen stood regarding the rescued wayfarer as though gazing upon some vivid camera scene.

They aroused the unconscious man through their own ministrations, but they discovered that one limb seemed broken. The doctor told them that it was a bad fracture when he was summoned by Mr. Vance.

They knew the next day all that the young man cared to tell about himself. His name was Adrian Noble. He had been turned away from his father's door on account of his drinking habits. He had wandered to Malden, in a muddled condition, had fallen from a high sidewalk and here he was—penniless, homeless and friendless.

"The penniless part of it needn't worry you, if you are resolute to work and reform," said Abner Vance in his blunt, practical way. "As to being homeless, you are welcome here till you are better and we will be your friends if you will let us."

In a strange, subdued manner, the young man grew into their family and business lives. They fixed up a room for him behind the playhouse stage and when he got so he could move around on crutches placed him in charge of the little ticket booth.

Adrian Noble would set his eyes upon Helen as she practiced the music for the entertainments.

When he could get around more freely, Noble began to take a rare interest in the business. He suggested improvements in the character of the films, he was the distributor of some unique advertising that brought in the audiences.

With brighter business prospects, Mr. Vance still longed for the big hall in the center of the town. He talked about it incessantly and it interested Noble. One day the latter came to Helen with a grave, earnest face.

"Will you write something for me?" he asked.

"Certainly—what is it?" inquired Helen, flushing a trifle under his clear, steady gaze.

"A temperance pledge. I am through with the old folly. I want your hand to inscribe the promise I shall never break."

Two days later Noble disappeared mysteriously from the playhouse. Helen never dreamed she could so miss him. He walked in upon them just after the entertainment Saturday night, a new being in apparel and manner.

"There is the lease of the hall for a year, all paid for and made out in your name," he said quietly, handing a folded document to his host.

"What does this mean?" stared the astonished Mr. Vance.

"I went to my father with that pledge and a truthful, manly story," replied Noble. "He bade me return to the true hearts of gold who had wrought the miracle of my reformation."

Mrs. Vance was crying in her motherly, sympathetic way. Helen's eyes beamed upon him, and in their glowing depths Adrian Noble read the sure promise of a lasting haven of love!

Emergency Call.

"Is this the fire department?" yelled the excited professor of chemistry over the telephone. "Yes," answered a voice. "What do you want?" "How far is it to the nearest alarm box? My laboratory is on fire and I must send the call in at once."—American Legion Weekly.

Business.

"Business is business," but men are men,
Loving and working, dreaming;
Toiling with pencil or space or pen,
Roistering, planning, scheming.

"Business is business"—but he's a fool,
Where business has grown to smother
His faith in men and the Golden Rule,
His love for a friend and brother.

"Business is business"—but life is life,
Though we're all in the game to win it,
Let's rest sometimes from the heat and strife,
And try to be friends a minute.

Let's seek to be comrades now and then
And slip from our golden tether.
"Business is business," but men are men,
And we're all good pals together!

Nobody keeps a bootjack around the house any more, but we should think it would come in handy for helping girls get their feet out of the shoes two sizes too small they have been wedged into.

Doubled Barreled Weakness.

A Kentucky mountaineer traded two kegs of the stuff once commonly made in the Kentucky mountains to a city chap for a much-used motorcycle. Some time later the city chap sought out the man-o'-the-hills and complained that the liquid in one of the kegs was very much diluted.

"That makes the deal squarer," drawled the hill man. "The 'motorsickle' is weak in one barrel, too."

"This is Chippendale furniture," said the salesman.

"I never heard of that wood before," said Mr. Newlyrich.

"You made a nice break," said his wife as they left the store, "calling Chippendale a wood."

"Well, ain't it?"

"Certainly not," said Mrs. Newlyrich, with emphasis on the not, "it's a town."

Every woman will implicitly trust her husband just as long as she knows he knows she has her eyes glued on him.

Going Up.

I'd kissed her on her dimpled chin,
The precious little dove.
To take her hint I thought no sin,
When she murmured "Heavens above!"

Pitiful Creatures.

The poor nut who brings home a pint of ice cream when sent to the drug store by his wife for cold cream.

"What's become o' the feller thet wuz runnin' around these parts here a while back sayin' thet we wuzn't gointa hev' any winter?" gargles Amos Tash.

"Let me show you our new electric vacuum cleaner," suggested the salesman.

"No, thank you," said the newlywed. "We haven't any vacuums in our house."

COTTEKILL.

Cottekill, Feb. 27.—Our Wednesday evening, February 22nd, a birthday anniversary entertainment was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Nichols in this village in honor of Mr. Nichols' fifty-fourth anniversary. The guests gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Cronan and promptly at 8 o'clock marched to the residence of Mr. Nichols. And upon being invited in found Mr. Nichols comfortably seated in the sitting room. After which all were invited into the spacious parlor where several selections were rendered on the piano by Mrs. Henry Dunbar then several selections by Miss Tressa Nichols accompanied by solos by Pastor Weber and others. When Mrs. Nichols entered and invited all into the dining room where was sandwiches and cake, ice cream and coffee galore. Then all returned to the parlor where the pastor presented to Mr. Nichols several valuable presents presented by friends of the family and well wishers. A large cake graced the center of the table with the appropriate number of lighted candles. Each person making a wish then Mr. Nichols to blow out as many candles as possible with one puff and each candle blown out the one making the wish was supposed to receive the desired wish. Mr. Nichols succeeded in blowing out the entire number with one exception. Then all returned to the parlor where Mrs. Dunbar again gave several selections on the piano and more solos by several young ladies and gents. One especially fine solo was sung by John Cronan, Jr., while John Cronan, Sr., carried home the cake for being the finest whistler in the party, a solo by Miss Edith Cronan with Miss Tressa at the piano closed the evening as midnight had arrived. All wished Mr. Nichols many more returns of the same accompanied by good health and prosperity. Good night and all departed for their several places of abode feeling they had enjoyed a social evening. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Nichols and daughter, Tressa and friend, Robert Stall, the Rev. and Mrs. G. W. Weber, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Pine and daughter, Vera, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Cronan and daughter, Edith, Mr. and Mrs. John Skinner, son John and daughter Marjorie, Mrs. Charles Signor and son, Kenneth, George Depew, Mrs. Abner Gillespie, Mr. and Mrs. John Wood, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Locke, Miss Nora DuBois, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dunbar and son, John P. Cronan, Jr.

Guido W. Bock, a member of the police department, who a few years ago purchased a fine residence in this place to regain his health and who with his wife and mother lived here for several years and while here was noted for the fine stock he raised. Having regained his health returned to New York city and re-entered the service which he did and now after several years service has again returned to recuperate. We wish him success.

William Conner has purchased the Jacob Osterhoudt property on Lucas avenue, containing a fine residence, barn and good apple orchard. This is one of the many handsome residences on that street.

John Wood, who is somewhat of a chicken fancier, especially on barred and white rocks and who built a new poultry house last fall, is making preparations for the enlargement of same to double capacity.

Miss Nora DuBois visited friends in Kingston and Hurley on Monday and Tuesday.

Mrs. Secor of Kingston visited her mother, Mrs. J. J. DuBois at this village on Tuesday.

Egbert Everett of Kingston visited his sister, Mrs. DuBois on Monday.

Rumor says we are to have a bread and cake bakery in this village this summer also a wayside ice cream and candy parlor with several new bungalows and a bread cake and pie bakery. This village will surely be on the map.

Ira Snyder has sold a building adjoining Robert Hamilton's residence on Main street to friends of Mr. Hamilton, who will build in the near future a fine bungalow on same. Also the adjoining building lot to his daughter, Laura, for a bungalow site. These properties are on the western end of the village on the main street. A new dwelling on the heights together with large blacksmith shop or garage built last summer by Mr. Houghtaling, if the building contemplated is carried out and continues to increase, Cottekill and Stone Ridge instead of being sister villages will be united in one village. Then on the eastern side of the village Judge Conner of the court of special sessions has several beautiful building lots for bungalow sites, provided his honor would sell.

Henry Keator who has had a slight attack of grip, we are pleased to note is very much improved at this writing.

There was a goodly attendance at the M. E. Sunday school on Sunday afternoon. If there are any who are not attending Sunday school at some place we welcome you to our M. E. school.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Locke were pleasantly entertained on Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Keator.

Mr. and Mrs. John Skinner entertained the young people at their home on Saturday evening in honor of the seventh anniversary of their marriage.

Robert Stall entertained at his home on Friday evening.

Mrs. Middagh, who has been visiting her grandson, John A. Keator at the Summitt the past two months returned home to her daughter, Mrs. Henry Keator on Saturday.

Mrs. Robert Hamilton and Mrs. Asa Snyder of this village made a business trip to Kingston on Tuesday.

Jacob Barley, who has been somewhat indisposed, has so far recovered as to be able to return to his labors on the New York Ontario and Western Railroad.

This village presents a fine opening for a young business man in the grocery trade. One who is not afraid of work, who will go out in the forenoon take orders and deliver in the afternoon.

J. M. Schaefer, whose large farm barn was struck by lightning and burned last August has had the same rebuilt. Same size on former foundation and had his large boarding house, Echo Lodge, repainted and improved throughout. This is now one of the show places of the village.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed in the Cottekill M. E. Church on Sunday evening, March 19, this will be the last for the present conference year.

At the election for trustees held in the lecture room of the Cottekill M. E. Church on February 23rd, John Wood and J. B. Davis were reelected for three years each and J. H. Locke was elected president and treasurer of the board, Mrs. Abner Gillespie, secretary. The present janitor was retained for the ensuing year.

The young people's musical entertainment in the M. E. Church held on February 21 under the supervision of Mrs. J. P. Cronan netted forty dollars for the church.

METTACAHONTS.

Mettacahonts, Feb. 27.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pine of Binghamton have donated a large Bible to our Rochester Reformed Church in place of the one recently destroyed by fire when that edifice was burned Christmas day. Mrs. Pine was formerly Belle Wood, daughter of Simeon Depuy Wood. His parents owned a seat and worshipped in the old stone church. They have sent the Bible to their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Eli Rider, until needed for use in the new church.

Work on the hall is not progressing very rapidly.

Miss Carrie Simpson of Briarcliff Manor is spending a week with her friend, Miss Rissa Depuy, of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Osterhoudt entertained on Saturday evening last Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kelder and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Kelder and sons and the Rev. and Mrs. L. A. Braam. A delicious supper was served, accompanied by ice cream and cake.

Oscar Markle and Preston Enderly were in Kingston Monday with trucks.

The men of the place have plans under way for a fine entertainment to be given in the future for the benefit of the Rochester Reformed Church. Watch for the date.

Mrs. Spencer Traver and son, Harry, visited her mother, Mrs. William Gosselin, at Kerhonkson, on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Lightning Strokes.

With regard to the voltage of lightning strokes there are only estimates. These range from a few hundred thousand to several billion volts, depending upon the ideas of the persons making the estimates. No measurements have been made. The amperage of lightning strokes is more definitely known, a few attempts having been made to measure it. The best measurements of this kind show that the current intensity may be as great as 25,000 amperes. As for harnessing lightning and turning it into energy useful to man, no practicable scheme has yet been presented.

one of the chief causes of constipation?

The quotation is taken from an important paper on the treatment of constipation by a well-known physician

DID it ever occur to you that the cathartic you take to relieve constipation, is the cause of your trouble?

Yet when a number of doctors were discussing this almost universal complaint one of them said: "Probably one of the most frequent causes of constipation is the indiscriminate use of cathartics." For years physicians have tried to persuade people to give up laxatives and to eat corrective foods instead.

It is now known that Fleischmann's Yeast is a food which makes the use of cathartics unnecessary. Because of its freshness it helps the intestines eliminate waste matter.

People who are adding Fleischmann's Yeast to their daily diet find that their body functions are kept normal and regular. Eat 2 or 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast before or between meals every day. Place a standing order with your grocer. He will deliver Fleischmann's Yeast fresh daily.

PRINCESS MARY AND VISCOUNT LASCELLES WHO WERE MARRIED TODAY IN LONDON

THE KING'S COACH, IN WHICH PRINCESS MARY AND VISCOUNT LASCELLES RODE TODAY TO WESTMINSTER ABBEY FOR THEIR MARRIAGE CEREMONY.

You Must Beat Constipation Before it "Gets" your Health!

Do you realize that constipation will "get" you if you don't relieve this dangerous condition permanently? Do you also know that pills and cathartics are not only habit-forming but that in their temporary action they aggravate an already dangerous condition?

What you need is bran—a natural food—KELLOGG'S BRAN, cooked and krumbled. Bran is not a "remedy," but it is a wonderful natural cleanser that will actually free you from constipation if eaten regularly.

Results from eating Kellogg's Bran are astounding! Bran keeps the intestinal tract active; it sweeps, cleanses, purifies!

Physicians indorse Kellogg's Bran for constipation. It is the ideal way to correct constipation through food. We guarantee that Kellogg's Bran will relieve constipation permanently if it is eaten regularly. You should also know that the consistent use of Kellogg's Bran clears up the complexion and prevents bad breath from stomach and intestines.

You and your family should eat at least two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's Bran every day. Eat as much more as needed for relief of chronic cases. It is not only palatable—but actually delicious! Its nut-like flavor is most appetizing. Children become very fond of Kellogg's Bran. And, it is wonderfully good as a builder of strong, healthy bodies! Your grocer has it.

Use Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, as a cereal, with your favorite cereal or in countless palate-pleasing ways like in muffins, raisin bread, macaroons, gravies, pancakes, etc.

CHOICE OF DRESS

Women Should Use Brains, Asserts Fashion Writer.

Thought to Right Garment for Right Occasion, and Glance at Mode Will Be Aid.

"The revolutionary period of fashion is upon us, when the French designers insist on purity of line, women must return to her stays, the uncorseted figure, the extremely short skirt, and an immodest decolletage must give way to dignity and modesty in dress." This is the opinion expressed by a prominent writer of fashions and designer of many a distinctive dress and dress accessories.

"The corset bids fair to come back a modified and corrective article of dress an inconspicuous and useful preserver of the beautiful lines of the natural figure.

"This is the opportunity of the woman who is clever enough to dress with her brains instead of with her purse alone. If a woman of average intelligence gives her thought to the right garment for the right occasion and casts a sharp glance at the present mode she may dress well at comparatively small outlay."

The speaker was busily fashioning an odd little bag of velvet. She was wearing a knitted sport dress, high of neck and long of sleeve in a delicate lavender.

"I knitted this dress. You see I practice as well as preach," she naively produced the daintiest of work bags and exhibited a black lace stocking she has just finished.

"Here's a stocking I made to match a black lace evening gown. Simply rip up an old stocking for a pattern and cut from a yard of all-over lace use silk jersey for sole, heel and toe, whip the seam carefully and finish the top with the hem from a discarded pair of stockings. The directions were simple and the product a fitting tribute to the skill of the maker.

"And here's a sport dress any girl may have now that tweed-like fabrics and economy are in vogue. This design will be brought out in the spring by a manufacturer in several colors. I did it this way: The one-piece skirt is in brown burlap; the six-inch hem is cut and fringed. The skirt is attached to a darted bandeau with shoulder straps and is worn with a sweater. A soft-crowned hat with a brim of burlap is fringed to match the skirt.

"And the shoes were her own design, black patent leather, high lace boots with spats of dull black satin. Of course there was reason. 'I'm a great friend of the high lace boot with a low heel and a moderate sole for golfing, general walking in fact, for all out-of-doors sports. Lace shoes turn the line of the ankle so the sensible woman will cross the high shoe even if it is a bit inconvenient as to lacing, in order to present a trim-clad ankle in the drawing room.'

In the matter of home furnishings she was enthusiastic. She declared she 'dressed up' her own home in unbleached muslin dyed in shades from brown to gold, used black lace shades appliqued with a medallion of color cut from a design in cretonne in a room furnished with old-fashioned bar cloth furniture.

"The effect is artistic and restful, the browns and golds cheer up the unbleached furniture in its austere walnut, the tones of the medallions blend the schemes together. The expense was small, but the investment of time and thought repaid me, as it does any woman who loves her home."

THE HOOP-SKIRT FOR SPRING

The hoop effect is quite pronounced in a new style of skirt already being manufactured in Chicago for milady's spring wear.

Worth Remembering.

Rub grease on the seams of new tinware, keep in a warm place for a day or two and the article will not rust in the seams. Have a little bag hung on the inside of the sewing machine frame to receive the clippings that accumulate when working at the machine.

Our Oyster Beds.

There are oyster beds along the Atlantic all the way from Cape Cod to Mexico, but the bivalves are not found in the open sea. The oysters would have been exterminated if it had not been for the practice of planting the seed.

TAN KNITTED FABRIC FROCK

A simple frock of tan knitted fabric is this with its clever panel of tan and brown cross bars. The low waistline is a notable and modish feature.

WHIMS OF FASHION

Colored velvet heels on slippers.

Gilded quills stuck at odd angles in small black velvet hats.

Flaming red blouses as part of three-piece suits of duvetyn of some dark color.

Brocade slippers for negligee wear that match the gowns with which they are worn.

Black velvet, both for frocks and hats, trimmed with silver lace or silver ornaments.

Rare bits of old lace applied to black silk and made into purses and small handbags.

Brocade negligees that would once have been considered quite gorgeous enough for dinner gowns.

Brown orange duvetyn vest, with orange braiding all over its surface, to wear with a brown street suit or coat.

Gloves of white kid with cuffs covered with an applied cutout design in black kid. Other white gloves embroidered with silver on a black cuff facing.

Huge ostrich fans. In spite of the vogue for eagle feather fans and for fans of spangled net and painted gauze there remains a fondness for huge fans of gorgeous ostrich in rich color.

Black astrachan trimming on gray velvet hats. One is made like a jockey's cap, in two piece segments stitched together, with a visor of the fur pushed flat back against the little round crown.

POMPONS ARE EASY TO MAKE

Decoration Is Very Smart and Simple to Model—How Tassels Can Be Made at Home.

Pompons are very smart this year and it is quite simple to make them at home out of yarn. To make these, cut two round pieces of cardboard about two inches and a half in diameter. Punch a hole in the center and wind the yarn in and out until the card is covered. Insert the points of small scissors between the two outer edges and cut the threads after tying the yarn tightly between the two pieces of cardboard. Slip the cards off either end and trim the pompon down to the desired size.

Tassels are made by winding yarn on a piece of cardboard about half an inch longer than you desire the finished tassel to be. Slip two or three threads of yarn between the cardboard and the yarn at one end and tie tightly. At the other end cut the yarn so as to make the tassel part. A more attractive and finished tassel is made by winding yarn around the tassel a few times about three-fourths of an inch from the top.

Tailored Neckwear.

Since clothes of the sports types are now so generally worn, it is but natural that dress accessories should be designed along the same lines. This fashion trend is especially apparent in the neckwear. The tweed suit, which is so greatly favored now, requires tailored neckwear, and among the new displays are collars, guimpes and filets in pique, heavy Irish linen and the heavier flannel, kid and novelty fabrics. In the latter there are vestee effects attached to net guimpes. These are made up of a heavy pile brocade material in green and orange tones. They are decidedly smart.

Homemade Garments.

More women are going in for home-made garments this season. It is usually easy to make a little afternoon or evening dress at home, and money saved in this way may be put into the tailored suit or frock. In the development of the dress with matching coat, a woman may often make the dress and have a good tailor make the coat.

Fan-Bags.

The fan-bag is one of the novelties. These fan-bags are usually made of feathers—that is, shell or imitation shell frames covered with feathers. They may be used either as fans or bags.

Ben Franklin's Parents.

Benjamin Franklin's father, Josiah Franklin, emigrated to America from England about 1685. His mother, a second wife, was the daughter of Peter Folger, a leading settler, noted for his philanthropy and tolerance.

GAME IN ARCTIC ABUNDANT

Hunters Have Had the Best Season They Have Enjoyed for the Last Twenty Years.

According to mail advices from Nome, Alaska, this is the periodic year of abundant wild animal life in the Arctic regions.

Early winter, with tremendously large ice floes in the Behring sea, gave the natives of Kutsebue sound the most profitable polar bear hunting in 20 years. More of these animals have been shot or killed to date than for many years combined. Only in exceptionally severe winters does this nomad of the Arctic abound so far south. Accordingly Northwest Alaskans prepared for a long, cold winter.

The white king of the northern regions is a combined hunter-sailor-hobo. He has no fixed habitat, but goes where game is most plentiful, coming down with the ice pack from the North when the seal, walrus and whale move.

Unlike any other animal, the polar bear keeps to the ice, and will seek shore only when cut off from open water. It is the best swimmer of the animal world. Loose-jointed, ungainly, silly looking, with a skin that fits badly, the creature is, however, very fleet footed.

No game laws will ever guard the great polar bear, for he lives in a region little frequented by human beings and keeps entirely out of sight. Every 20 years or oftener a severe winter will induce them to travel 1,000 miles southward and thus become the victims of the long-distance rifles of the hunters.

FIRST ON AMERICAN STAGE

"Beggar's Opera" Caused Some Controversy When It Was Produced at New York in 1751.

The first musical play presented upon the American stage was "The Beggar's Opera," by John Gay, which was produced at the Nassau Street theater in New York 171 years ago. A considerable proportion of the 10,000 people then comprising the population of New York attended the performance, although there were not a few who protested against the "godless affair" and threatened to "have the law on it."

The Murray & Kean company, a band of comedians who went to New York from Philadelphia, was responsible for the production. It was a benefit performance for Thomas Kean, who personally called on the leading citizens and sold tickets. The performance began at 6 o'clock and was over at 9:45. A harlequin dance, a pierrot dance and "The Drunken Peasant" were presented as "entertainments between the acts."

"The Beggar's Opera" was long popular, and some of its lines are still quoted, among them: "How happy could I be with either, were t'other dear charmer away!"—Chicago Journal.

She Was Used to It.

A boy on a bicycle whizzed around a corner and knocked a woman down. She must have been built of something more durable than bones, for before the boy could right his wheel and get off if she had scrambled to her feet, and, seeing his intention of first aid, remarked:

"Thank you, son, I'm real obliged."

The youngster was awful sorry, and was saying so in the honest way a boy has, when she interrupted.

"That's all right! This makes the third time I've been run over and I ought to be used to it by now. The first upset—automobile—put me in bed for a week. The second—fender caught me—only laid me up two days and I shall probably be as spry as ever tomorrow; back hurts a little, but what I'm thanking you for is you are the only one of the three who took the trouble to feel sorry."

Which shows how easy a thing is—when you get used to it.—Nannie Lancaster in the Washington Star.

Jews of New York.

There are 1,600,000 Jews in Greater New York—nearly 30 per cent of the entire population, observes Foreign Language Information Service. This number equals the total population of Philadelphia, or Detroit and Cleveland put together, or Buffalo, San Francisco and Pittsburgh combined or twice the population of Boston. The 1,600,000 are distributed as follows: East side of Manhattan, 33,000; Harlem, 232,000; Bronx, 311,000; Williamsburgh, 203,000; Brownsville, 191,000; East New York, 108,000; Borough park, 66,000; Queens, 23,000; Richmond, 5,000, and scattered, 127,000.

This population supports 12 Jewish theaters, 5,000 grocery and delicatessen stores, 300 stationery, cigar and candy stores, 2,400 meat shops, 800 drug stores, 700 shoe stores, 275 hardware stores, 250 paint shops, 240 furniture stores and 150 electrical dealers.

High Price for Manuscript.

The largest amount given for a modern manuscript was paid in New York for Thackeray's "The Rose and the Ring." The author wrote and illustrated it himself for a child friend; and when it was last put up at auction it realized $23,000.

EGYPT UNDER BRITISH RULE

Population of Nearly Thirteen Million Is Decidedly Cosmopolitan in Its Character.

Egypt is a country exceeding in actual extent France and Germany. Its area is some 424,000 square miles, but of this total more than 95 per cent is desert land supporting only a very scanty nomad population. The important part of the country, consisting of the valley and delta of the Nile together with the western oases, covers an area of 12,226 square miles, or a territory only a little larger than Belgium. In addition, some 2,850 square miles comprise the surface of the Nile, marshes and lakes while canals, roads and date plantations cover another 1,900 square miles. Egypt, therefore, is a small country with well-defined natural boundaries on three sides, namely, the Mediterranean on the north, the Arabian desert and the Red sea on the east, and the Libyan desert on the west. To the south Egypt extends up to a point 25 miles north of Wadi Halfa, on the second cataract of the Nile. The present population of Egypt is 12,746,765, as compared with 11,287,259 in 1907, with 9,734,405 in 1897, and with 6,813,121 in 1882. Of the total population 10,366,046 are Egyptians, 635,012 Bedouins, 65,102 Nubians, and 221,150 foreigners made up as follows: Turks, 69,725; Greeks, 61,973; Italians, 41,926; British, 20,653; French and Levantians, 14,501; Austro-Hungarians, 7,794; Russians, 2,419; Germans, 1,847; other Europeans, 2,116; and Persians, 1,353.

Time for Caution.

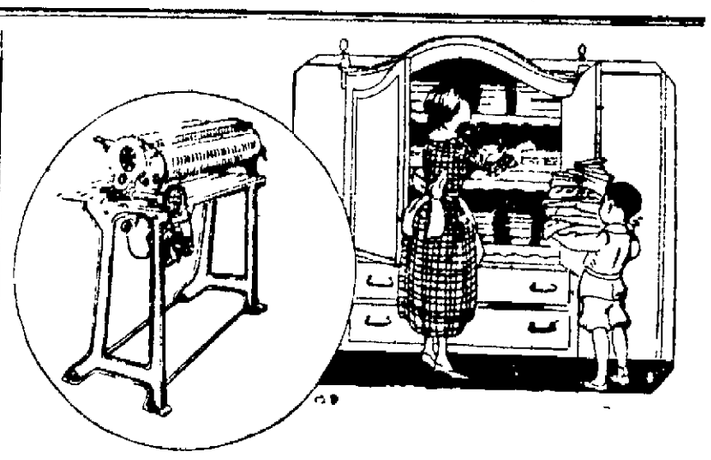

Our idea of the time to stop, look and listen, not to say count 100 is when we receive a letter from some one we never heard of before extending us a personal invitation to join with him as a stockholder in an industry which offers the greatest opportunity in the United States today.—Ohio State Journal.

Dog Loyalty.

That loyalty, burning bright and true to the last spark of life, that unfailing welcome on which a man can count more surely than on any human love—indeed, there is no secret in a man's love for a dog, however we may wonder at the dog's love for the man.—R. P. Utter in the Century Magazine.

Bagpipe's Music.

The music of a bagpipe proceeds from three or four pipes. One of these, the chanter, is a primitive oboe with eight holes; the others called drones, sound each one low continuous tone.

To Help You With Your Weekly Ironing

we have an Electric Ironing Machine that will enable you to iron the entire week's washing in an hour or so. No longer is it necessary for you to push a heavy iron around for an entire morning.

You Can Sit While You Iron With an Electric Ironer

You merely feed the pieces into the machine. They come out of the roller perfectly ironed with a smooth, glossy surface that will delight you. All flatwork, dresses, skirts, daintiest lingerie, doilies, curtains, etc., are easily and beautifully ironed.

CALL AND SEE THE MACHINE, WON'T YOU?

Severed Love's Tie.

One day a young man whom I had admired for some time, but who was keeping steady company with another girl, asked to take me to a party. I was overjoyed, thinking that he had left her and had come to me, only to learn later that she didn't think that she could come, and, wanting to take some girl, he had asked me. When he arrived at the party he found his old sweetheart there and turned all his attention to her. Worst of all, I had to walk home alone. That was my first and last time with him.—Chicago Journal.

Her First Love Affair.

One moonlight night after attending a literary society meeting at a rural school house, a friend of mine escorted me to my home, writes a correspondent. As we stepped upon the front porch, Rover, our dog, decided the stranger did not belong there. He chased him until he jumped over the hedge. I laughed, of course. Others returning from the meeting saw the entire scene. A full account of the incident was given in the paper at the next meeting. This ended my first love affair.

THE BIG INCOMES.

A generation ago the American people were curious to know how many millionaires this country could boast of and took a certain pride in their numbers as an indication of the country's opportunities and prosperity. Later there was interest in the number of multi-millionaires but less of pride in consequence of alarmist discussion of the concentration of wealth in a few hands. Now nobody is interested in millionaires, for they are too common and even the multi-millionaire is too frequent to be particularly notable. So the public turns to statistics dealing, not with principal but with income, and we are informed every year as to the number of income-tax payers who enjoy an annual interest of more than a million dollars on their investments.

The latest statement of this sort submitted by the Internal Revenue Bureau shows that in the calendar year 1919 exactly 5 unnamed Americans had incomes of five millions and over; that 6 had yearly incomes from three to four millions; 7, from two to three millions; 13, from one and a half to two millions; 34, from one million to a million and a half; 66, from three quarters of a million to one million; 129, from a half million up; 285, from $300,000 up; 269, from $250,000 up; 1092, from $150,000 up; 2,083, from $100,000 up; and 1,113, from $90,000 up. We learn further that 5,332,769 persons filed income tax returns, reporting a total net income of $19,559,191,118, the government taking its income tax toll to the amount of $1,269,630,191. Out of more than five million persons paying income tax only 65 had incomes of more than a million a year.

HEALTH EXPERT AT 99.

Dr. Stephen Smith, founder of the New York State and National Boards of Health, risks criticism by his latest published utterance. Although he celebrated his 99th birthday at Montour Falls, N. Y., on February 15, he was hale and hearty enough two weeks earlier to be the guest of honor at a dinner given in New York city by the Public Health Association to mark the golden jubilee of his membership. This spry old near-centenarian and medical scientist not only gave his vigorous looking picture to the New York World but declared in an interview that for many years he had thrived on wine-drinking. Those likely to be filled with indignation by his remarks will at least have the consolation of the old saying that one man's meat is another man's poison.

The World quotes Dr. Smith as saying that the secret of longevity is sufficient proper food, and further: "In my earlier years I suffered from dyspepsia and it forced me to a meagre diet of simple foods. As a result I saved my stomach and have the use of it now. I took care of my stomach during the first fifty years of my life and now it is taking care of me. It was during a visit to Paris as delegate to the International Sanitary Conference that I learned to drink wine, with the result that I have been well ever since. At a banquet I sat next to a famous French physician whom I told about my unfortunate handicap. He advised me to drink wine between the courses, saying it would digest the food I had eaten. I followed his advice and did not experience any further discomfort." Dr. Smith is further quoted as saying that work is the "second essential" to the attainment of long life; the brain cells "need stimulation" and "must be kept busy."

HIS PRIVATE CAR.

The automobile not only facilitates the operations of the criminal but is apt to tempt the high-living college student to further "riotous" extremes. This is quite obvious, but it is not the whole, if even a part, of the reason why the student body of Princeton has filed objection to private cars at the command of the wealthier young men attending that institution. Consciously or unconsciously automobilists are apt to acquire a species of scorn for pedestrians and a feeling of proprietorship in the country's highways, even the active manifestations of which leave the patient American public only momentarily irritated.

But among university students there is concern about more than the rights of pedestrians. There is a desire to maintain the democratic spirit which has distinguished the American college and to a considerable extent does so still. It is probable that college faculties would be slow to make rules limiting their wealthy students to hired taxicabs, yet it must be quite clear to them that flying round the country many hours a day is not conducive to scholarship.

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Dept. of this paper. Look for answers in this column.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. How long does it take ostrich feathers to grow to marketable length?

2. Can a sterile fig tree be fertilized?

3. What is the difference between a turtle and a terrapin?

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes

Answers to Previous Questions.

1. Are chicken snakes harmful about a farm?

As several of the Colubers are called "chicken" snake, this is a little hard to answer. Coluber obsoletus, the four-banded, yellow, yellow-rat, and striped house snake, does take a good many chickens and eggs, but it also eats many mice and rats. All the Colubers eat warm-blooded prey, and frequently do more good than harm by keeping down small rodent pests.

2. I saw a paragraph about deaf white cats. Is it true that if they have one eye blue and one yellow, it is a sign of deafness?

We can't say positively, but our belief is that cats thus marked are often deaf. The blue eye is a defective organ, lacking normal pigment, and is a symptom of partial albinism. As we said before, the albinism might account for poor powers of hearing, as well as for an eye lacking the normal color which the other eye retained.

3. In what part of the United States is the peafowl most plentiful?

We cannot say. Peafowls are introduced species from India, Ceylon, etc., but now thoroughly domesticated. They are known to have been domesticated on Judea when King Solomon was living; and early records show them known in Greece and Rome; from whence they spread to the west of Europe, and finally were brought to America. You might as well ask where any fowl are most plentiful—they are plentiful wherever poultry raisers find it profitable to keep them.

HIGH FALLS.

High Falls, Feb. 27.—The Rev. Mr. Braithwaite preached a very interesting sermon on Sunday morning taking for his theme the Trial of Faith, Peter, 1st chapter, 7th verse. Mr. Braithwaite was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Church.

Closing exercises and presentation by Lieutenant Governor Wood of the diplomas, followed by a banquet, takes place this evening.

PHOEBE FLICKER'S TRAVELS.

Finds Only School Bird Club to Welcome Her Here.

On my arrival at Kingston, I find the city without a bird club excepting the junior Audubon Society of the high school, and for those who are older and have left school, no advantages are obtained from such an organization and yet the advantages of such an organization are many. Kingston, I find, has many bird lovers who should organize, as the interest in birds and bird protection is in keeping with the progressive spirit of such wide-awake cities. It is well situated for bird life, in the center of the Hudson valley migration route and with plenty of shade trees, parks, cemeteries and small groups of woodlands in the city and nearby, all of which are attractive to our migrants and summer residents. Birds are a necessity in every community, not in fancy but in fact. Without them our trees, our grains, our vegetable life would soon be stripped of their leaves by the unnumbered host of insects which continually prey upon our vegetation. As allies of the farmer, the gardener and the lumbermen, they cannot be valued, in fact, they are one of the charges placed here on earth for our direct benefit and progress. Aside from this benefit, which could be explained in more detail, we see their beauty, hear their songs, watch their flight, learn their ways; ways which many of us could profit by.

There is a great pleasure and much healthful exercise obtained in the pursuit of birds afield, exercise which is greatly needed for us city folks, shut indoors all day. There is a motive in our walks afield when something is to be seen or gained.

Birds often cause much comment and gain much admiration from many people. How much the robin will be noticed when he first appears and how we will comment on the first one seen, and yet before the summer is past we hardly seem to notice him. The blue bird is a copartner with the robin in these respects. The song sparrow often comes earlier, but in his more modest dress and retiring habits is not noticed so much. We should begin our activities in the winter and help to feed, and learn of those that are with us then. We regularly have in Kingston (and this year is no exception) the downy, and hairy woodpecker, nuthatches, chickadee, goldfinch, tree sparrow, junco jay, sparrow hawk and screech owl. Occasionally we see rarer birds from the north, the siskin, red poll, evening and pine grosbeak, snowflakes crossbills, horned larks, gulls and snowy owls.

For those who take interest, the winter birds should be learned first, then the spring migrants as they come north, slowly at first, but increasing in numbers until the climax is reached about the 20th of May. In studying them this way we do not have to overload our minds trying to make our first identification in the midst of a large host of migrants, which places the beginner in many a vexing situation. Already the call of spring is in the air, and many birds have already left their winter resorts for their long journey to the northern nesting haunts. We will welcome them back. We want to learn to identify them, learn their songs and their ways. Ours is the chance, now is the opportunity. Growing Kingston with its increasing beauty, its new parks and playgrounds is an ideal city for birds, and the birds are needed to add touches of life and color to the improving and beautifying of our city life.

A Business Irritation Easy to Avoid

Few things are quite so irritating as to be forced to drop your work and leave your desk to answer a telephone located some distance away. Your time is wasted. Your train of thought is interrupted. Concentration becomes impossible. Your moving about annoys and confuses other workers. Even more serious is the fact that you keep the calling person waiting—and you do not know how important his message may be.

An extension telephone on your desk will prevent this constant confusion, waste and irritation, and the increased efficiency it brings will far outweigh the cost of $1.00 a month.

Why not call our local office now and arrange for your extension telephone?

The DIRECT treatment for all cold troubles

ABSORBED, like a liniment and, at the same time,

INHALED as a vapor, Vicks reaches immediately the congested air passages

VICKS STANDING OFFER

Vicks doesn't relieve every case. No remedy can possibly do that. But it is so successful in so many cases that we have had for years this standing offer: Buy either the 35c, 75c or $1.50 size from your druggist. If you are not delighted with the results, mail us the top of the carton and we will cheerfully refund the purchase price. Or, if you wish to try Vicks before you buy mail the coupon below for a free sample.

Prevent Spasmodic Croup

By the DIRECT Treatment, at Bedtime

MOTHERS who have adopted Vicks for children's cold troubles lose their old dread of Spasmodic Croup. One application at bedtime usually keeps croup away but, if an attack does come unexpectedly, the use of Vicks often brings relief in 15 minutes.

Externally applied and quickly effective, Vicks is a wonderfully satisfactory substitute for the old method of nauseous dosing to induce vomiting.

Vicks penetrating, stimulating, vaporizing action makes it invaluable in the same way for the cold troubles of all the family.

How Vicks Should be Used for the Children

Spasmodic Croup—At the first sound of harsh breathing apply Vicks over throat and chest, rubbing well in—then apply more and cover with a hot flannel cloth. Arrange bed-clothes in form of a funnel so the vapors will be freely inhaled.

Children's Colds—Apply Vicks over throat and chest. Cover with a flannel cloth. Leave the clothing [illegible] and at night the bed-clothing loose about the neck so that the rising vapors can be freely inhaled. Apply a little Vicks up the nose, and, if the throat is sore, have the child swallow a piece the size of a pea.

The Origin of Vicks

Twenty-five years ago, Druggist Lunsford Richardson, of Greensboro, N. C., seeking a better way to treat colds, hit upon a wonderful formula. He combined Camphor, Menthol and certain volatile oils in the form of a salve so that, when applied to throat and chest, it not only penetrated and stimulated like a liniment, but the ingredients were released as vapors by the body heat and inhaled directly into the [illegible] air passages. This remedy, Vicks VapoRub, won instant local favor and its fame has spread, county by county, state by state, until now Vicks is a [illegible] from coast to coast and over 17 million jars are used yearly.

From the Ends of the Earth

Vicks contains valuable ingredients brought from distant countries—Camphor from Formosa, land of head-hunting savages; Menthol from picturesque Japan; Oil of Eucalyptus from far Australia; Oil of Juniper Tar from Bedouin Lands of Northern Africa; Oil of Thyme from smiling Southern France; Oil of Turpentine from Dixie, and penetrating healing oils from other foreign climes.

Good for a Host of Daily Ills

Vicks is good for congestion or inflammation, whether found in lining membrane or on the surface of the skin. Thus it is useful for dozens of daily hurts and ills of all the family.

For Deep Chest Colds, Sore Throat, Tonsilitis, Bronchitis, Coughs—Vicks should be applied over the throat and chest—if necessary, first using hot, wet cloths to open the pores of the skin—then rubbed in well until the skin is red; spread on thickly and covered with one or two thicknesses of hot flannel cloths. If the cough is annoying, a small piece the size of a pea can be swallowed every few hours.

For Head Colds, Asthma, Catarrh, Hay Fever—Vicks should be melted in a spoon and the vapors inhaled, or a little can be applied up the nostrils and snuffed up the head.

Used as a Liniment, Poultice or Plaster—On account of its penetrative and rubefacient effect on the skin, Vicks has been found excellent for many minor ailments, such as Bites, Boils, Burns, Bruises, Cuts, Frost Bites, Itchings, Muscular Soreness, Poison Ivy, Sunburn, Headache and Sore, Tired or Aching Feet.

City Clerk.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

SANTA CLAUS

"Of course," said Daddy, "the title or name for all the stories is 'Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale.'

"Now that is just a general name meaning that every evening Daddy has a story or two to tell to Nick and Nancy."

"We know," said Nick, "and we don't give you any week day nights off, do we?"

"I'm glad you don't," said Daddy. I would feel very, very badly if I thought you didn't want to hear stories. In fact, I would be quite heartbroken."

"You needn't be afraid that we won't want to hear them, Daddy, said Nancy.

"I should say not," said Nick.

"Well, that's good," said Daddy, "and now I want to tell you about the title to our stories. It doesn't mean, as I think you know and realize, that Daddy tells a fairy story every evening. Every once in a while he likes to tell of something that has happened in fairyland and he likes to tell a regular fairy story.

"But he wants to tell many, many real stories of the birds and of the animals, of the trees and of the flowers, of the butterflies and of the adventures other children have.

"Now it is the time of the year when we want Christmas stories, as we're all thinking of Christmas more than anything else.

"And we know that the general title of fairy tale has nothing to do with Christmas. We know that Christmas is real, and that Santa Claus is real, and that filled stockings and Christmas trees are real.

"So that our title of 'Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale' means more than anything that every evening Daddy is going to tell a story, and that every once in a while it will be a fairy story, and that at other times it will simply be a story or tale.

"I'm sure we all like different kinds of stories best rather than just one kind all the time, don't we?"

"We do indeed," said Nick.

"And so do all of our friends," said Nancy.

"Well, this evening I want to tell you that again this year the reindeer became nervous.

"'We've heard so much,' they told Santa Claus 'about the airplanes and automobiles and all of those things that we do hope we're not going to miss our Christmas eve trip. We do want to take you to all the city roofs where there are fire escapes where you can get down to the children's rooms, and also to all the chimneys of houses where you can climb down and fill the children's stockings.

"'We don't want to stay home on Christmas eve, and yet we get a little nervous in these modern times that we may be kept home, and some faster way of getting to the children will have to be taken.

"'Tell us, Santa Claus, are we going with you this Christmas eve?'

"Santa Claus pulled his white beard and his blue eyes twinkled merrily.

"'Gracious, me!' he said, 'do you suppose I would be willing to leave my reindeer behind? I wouldn't do that for anything.

"'I find you go very quickly, my dear, beautiful reindeer. Yes, you know how to hurry! And we will make our trip the same as usual on Christmas eve.

"'Ah, we'll hurry and we'll rush and we'll have such a gay and exciting time.

"'And I will find empty stockings hanging up for me and I will leave them filled to the very top.

"'I will find notes and sometimes I will find sugar for you, my beauties, and then I'll take a peep at the children as they sleep.

"'Oh, how Santa Claus does love his peep at the children! They look so adorable as they lie there in their little beds, and they always seem to be smiling.

"'I hope that they somehow feel that I am near them! And that this is why, perhaps, they are smiling.

"'Oh, never fear, lovely reindeer, Santa Claus will never leave you behind!'"

"Gracious Me."

THE ALL THE YEAR FRUIT

The banana is always in the market and can always be depended upon for every emergency.

To add to the dish of breakfast food for either child or adult, the food value of the dish is increased 100 calories by an ordinary-sized banana. For cocktails used at the beginning of a meal or as a fruit salad for the dessert, they are always an addition to any meal. For a salad for any occasion they are especially good, and easy to prepare.

Fruit Salad.—Mix equal quantities of bananas cut in small dice, pineapple and oranges. Put in a glass jar, and when ready to serve add the following dressing: Beat the yolks of four eggs, one-half cupful of lemon juice, three tablespoonfuls of water, two or three tablespoonfuls of honey or sugar, one teaspoonful of salt. Cook over hot water until thick, beating with an egg beater to make the dressing light and fluffy. Add the beaten whites and one cupful of whipped cream added the last.

Banana Charlotte Russe. — Pour a layer of lemon gelatine jelly into a wet mold. When firm line the sides of a mold with sweet wafers. Make a custard of the yolks of three eggs, one cupful of milk, one-half cupful of sugar and one teaspoonful of vanilla extract. Then add one and one-half teaspoonfuls of gelatin dissolved in one-half cupful of hot milk, strain, add two cupfuls of bananas, put through a sieve and the beaten whites of the eggs with one cupful of whipped cream. Pour into a mold and cool. Serve with a garnish of lemon jelly and sliced bananas.

Banana and Peach Compote.—Wash two cupfuls of dried peaches, cover with cold water, cook over night and the next day until tender, then rub through a sieve and sweeten to taste. Add the strained juice of an orange, the pulp of six bananas, put through a sieve, with a drop of pink coloring. Serve cold.

Revolutionary Army Uniform.

At the close of the Revolutionary war the uniforms of the American troops remained in service closely followed the French, that of the infantry being blue faced with white, and the artillery blue faced with red. At that time these were the only two arms in the composition of the army. Later cavalry was added, wearing green coats with white facings, which soon after changed to black. Since that time the uniforms of the army can be divided into periods, each of which dates back to the close of one of the wars.

"Be Sure You Are Right—"

"Be sure you are right, then go ahead." The foregoing was the maxim of David Crockett, a scout of pioneer days in America, also a soldier and politician, unlearned but shrewd and skillful. He was born in Limestone, Tenn., in 1786. His training was that of the wild frontier, typical of the early Nineteenth century. At the Alamo in 1836 he was one of the six survivors of the siege who, upon their surrender to General Santa Anna, were massacred by the Mexicans.

One-Handed Clock.

What is probably the oldest alarm clock in America, made in America, dates back to pre-Revolutionary times, and was made by Jonathan Wood of Philadelphia. The clock has but one hand, that telling the hours, which are in Roman numerals, separated into four sections, 15 minutes apart, so that it is possible to estimate the time within two or three minutes after a little practice. The time and alarm are both operated by weights.

"Potter's Field."

The term, which is applied to a place where the penniless and unknown are buried, had its origin in Matthew 27:7, when the chief priests "took counsel and bought with them (the thirty pieces of silver for which Judas betrayed the Master) the potter's field to bury strangers in." The name has clung to such plots ever since.

NEELY IS NEW KRESGE MANAGER

Ralph W. Martin, who has been manager of the local store of the S. S. Kresge Company on Wall street for the past 16 months, has entered the automobile and garage business at Johnson City, near Binghamton, and has been succeeded here by M. C. Neely, who comes from the Kresge store at Kansas City, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin in their comparatively brief sojourn here made numerous friends and became very well liked. Mr. Martin was formerly a well known college athlete, at one time having been on Camp's All-American football term, and served in the U. S. aviation corps during the world war. He resigned the vice presidency of the Kiwanis Club upon leaving Kingston.

Ashokan, Feb. 27.—Mrs. Earl Osterhoudt of Kerhonkson, spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. Millie Silkworth.

Miss Marjorie Davis spent the past week with her sister, Mrs. Chester Lyons, of Krumville.

A basketball game will be held in the Ashokan M. E. Church Hall on Wednesday evening, March 1st.

Mrs. John Davis and daughter Ruth, also Mrs. Charles Davis spent Friday of last week at the home of Miss May Bogart and mother.

The Junior choir will meet at the home of Vera Van Steenburg on Tuesday evening, February 28th at 7 o'clock.

The monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society will meet at the home of Miss May Bogart on Thursday, March 2nd.

Miss Vita Jones has been sick with the grip in the last week.

Sunday school and church were largely attended on Sunday last. The Junior choir rendered some new songs. Come again next Sunday and fill up the vacant seats.

LOS KAMP PUPILS GIVE RECITAL

On Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, some hundred and fifty friends of Miss Virginia Los Kamp, of New York city, soloist at the Rondout Presbyterian Church, and her pupils, enjoyed a delightful pupils' recital in the chapel of the church. Following the program a social hour was enjoyed, during which afternoon tea was served. Mrs. John Rowland, Mrs. Frank Powley, Miss Grace Terwilliger and Mrs. Cornelius Bishop presiding at the tea table. The program was as follows:

Miss Beulah Babcock and Mrs. Harry Smith presided at the piano.

While every number was admirably given and enthusiastically received, special mention might well be made of Miss Helen Webster's work which was very artistic. She sang with grace and finish.

Miss Mildred Messinger, contralto soloist at the St. James M. E. Church was warmly received. Her's is a big, luscious voice.

Miss Carolyn Sager, soprano soloist at the St. James M. E. Church, while suffering from a severe cold, gave a very intelligent and artistic interpretation of her numbers. Her's is indeed a lovely voice.

Miss Birdella Babcock, soloist of the Christian Science Church, has a very lovely high, clear soprano.

Miss Greta Linkletter has really an interesting future; is decidedly musical and has an unusual voice.

TEXT OF WALTON'S NEW ROAD BILL

Following is the text of the bill introduced in the legislature which would provide a way for the owners of the Sleighsburgh ferry to collect consequential damages if caused by the building of the Rondout Creek Bridge:

Introduced by Mr. Walton—read twice and ordered printed, and when printed to be committed to the Committee on Finance.

AN ACT

To amend the highway law, in relation to the determination of damages sustained by reason of the construction of a state highway.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Section one hundred and fifty-two of chapter thirty of the laws of nineteen hundred and nine, entitled "An act relating to highways, constituting chapter twenty-five of the consolidated laws," as last amended by chapter five hundred and three of the laws of nineteen hundred and eleven, is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 152. Duties of commissioners. The said commissioners shall take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution, which oath shall be filed in the office of the county clerk of the county. Upon the filing of such oath the title to the lands described in the petition and map filed in the office of the county clerk shall vest in the county for the purpose of a highway forever. The commissioners shall, with all reasonable diligence, proceed to examine such highways and lands. Said commission shall cause a notice to be published in two such newspapers as aforesaid, once each week for two weeks successively next preceding the day of meeting mentioned in such notice, that at a stated time and place within such county they will meet for the purpose of hearing the parties claiming an interest in the damages to be awarded for the lands taken for such highways. Said notice shall also state the fact that a map or maps showing the lands acquired has been filed in the county clerk's office. At the time and place of said meeting and at any adjournment thereof which said commissioners shall publicly make, they shall hear the proofs and allegations of all interested parties. They may adjourn the proceedings before them from time to time, issue subpoenas or administer oaths in such proceedings; and shall keep minutes of their proceedings and reduce to writing all oral evidence given before them. If any such lands shall be taken as part of any plan for any public improvement and the owner or owners thereof shall, at the same time, have and possess any right, privilege or franchise or business for the transportation by water of passengers, vehicles or freight, or either or all of them, and the value of the same by the execution of any such plan shall be impaired, injured or destroyed, such owner or owners because thereof shall have claim against the state of New York and the county within which the lands are located for damages, not only for the land taken, but for any injury, direct or consequential, which such owners, or any or either of them, may sustain. They shall thereafter make and sign a report in writing, in which they shall assess, allow and state the amount of damages to be sustained by the owners of the several lots, pieces of parcels of land taken for the purposes aforesaid. Said commissioners, in their report, also may determine any and all damages which may be sustained by any such owner or owners for the injury, impairment or destruction of any such right, privilege or franchise and in such report shall assess, allow and state such damages against the state of New York and the county in in which such lands, rights, privileges and franchise are located in such proportion as to such commissioners shall seem equitable and just. Such report shall contain the names of the owners of any parcel or land acquired as aforesaid, except that in case the commissioners are unable to ascertain the names of such owners, they may in place of the names of such undiscovered parties insert the words "unknown owners," in their report. The said commissioners shall file their said report, together with the minutes of their proceedings, in the office of the county clerk of such county. After said report shall have been completed and filed as aforesaid, the commissioners shall, after publishing a notice in like manner as that provided in section one hundred and fifty-two, apply to the county court of the county or to the supreme court, at a special term thereof to be held in the judicial department in which said county is located, to have the said report confirmed. If no sufficient reason to the contrary shall appear the court shall confirm said report. Otherwise it may refer the same back to the said commissioners for revision or correction; and after such revision or correction the same proceedings shall be taken as are herein provided for and the commissioners shall in the same manner make renewed application for the confirmation of such report, and the court shall thereupon confirm or refer back the said report, and such proceedings shall be repeated until the report shall be presented which shall be confirmed by the said court.

§ 2. Section one hundred and fifty-three of said chapter thirty as last amended by chapter five hundred and three of the laws of nineteen hundred and eleven, is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 153. State and county treasurers to pay awards. Within six months after the report of said commissioners shall be confirmed as aforesaid, the county treasurer of such county and the state treasurer shall pay to the persons named therein the amounts awarded to them for damages with six per centum interest thereon from the date of the filing of the oath of the commissioners in the office of the county clerk. Such amounts with interest and the amounts paid in pursuance of this article shall be [a] state and county charges in the amounts respectfully determined in such report and shall be paid by the state and county treasurers, in case of purchase upon requisition of the chairman of the board of supervisors of said county, or by any member or committee thereof designated for that purpose by said board and in case of a petition for the acquisition of such lands, upon service of a certified copy of the order confirming such awards. In case there are unknown owners, to whom the awards [is] are made in said report, the said [county] treasurers shall deposit the amounts awarded to them with like interest in some trust company or bank in such manner as the said court shall in the order of confirmation direct, such amount to be paid out upon the application of such unknown owners when discovered.

§ 3. This act shall take effect immediately.

To win a race a Jockey doesn't put extra weight on the horse that helps him succeed

No man or woman who wants to succeed in the race of life can afford the handicap of headaches, insomnia, indigestion and debility. Nor can they afford to take anything that may keep up a continual irritation of the nervous system.

Yet this is what many people do who drink excessive amounts of tea or coffee. For tea and coffee contain caffeine, a substance that is sometimes very injurious. Many doctors say that caffeine raises the blood pressure, irritates the kidneys, and over-stimulates the entire nervous system. Also that it is especially bad for growing children, or for any one who has any tendency to nervousness or insomnia.

If you want to avoid a possible cause of headache, insomnia, or nervousness, it might be well to stop taking tea and coffee for awhile, and drink rich, satisfying Postum, instead.

Postum is a delitately-roasted, pure cereal beverage—delicious and wholesome.

Order Postum from your grocer today. Drink this fragrant, healthful beverage for awhile, and see if you will not feel brighter, more active, and more resistant to fatigue—as so many thousands of others have felt.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

Lent is Macaroni Time

Big Demand Keeps Mueller Plant Humming to Meet It

Lots of People Find Out During Lent How Many Appetizing and Delicious Dishes Can Be Made From This Nourishing, Sustaining Food, and Keep on Eating Mueller's Three Times a Week All the Rest of the

EVERY year just before Lent the big Mueller factories in Jersey City are kept bustling to supply the enormous demand for Mueller's Spaghetti, Macaroni and Egg Noodles Everybody seems to know that for a meatless meal nothing is so nourishing and satisfying

And every year during the Lenten season, thousands of housewives find to their surprise that there are scores of tempting and delicious ways of preparing Mueller's—that they can make so many tasty, dainty dishes from Mueller's Foods that the whole family welcome them with delight and pass their plates for more

Mueller's delicious with Oysters!

Paste this recipe in a book.

1 Package Mueller's Spaghetti
1 Quart oysters drained
Butter Salt and pepper to taste
Buttered cracker crumbs
2 Cups milk scalded
2 Tablespoons cornstarch

Prepare spaghetti according to directions on the Mueller label Grease a baking dish put in layer of spaghetti, then layer of oysters dot with butter season with salt and pepper repeat layers until material is used finishing with layer of spaghetti Moisten cornstarch with cold water then stir into milk and bring to boiling point Cook five minutes and add one tablespoon of butter Pour thin mixture over oysters in dish sprinkle a layer of cracker crumbs over top and bake in quick oven ten minutes or until crumbs are browned. Serve hot.

For Lent—and All the Rest of the Year A Fine Food for the Whole Family

If you will plan your Lenten meatless meals with Mueller's Spaghetti, Macaroni or Egg Noodles as the principal dish, you will make some very interesting discoveries

You will find that Mueller's are such nourishing, strengthening foods that meat is not missed—that the whole family feels more energetic, animated and cheerful when they eat less meat and more Mueller's

You will find that, because of the triple-sealed, air-tight, moisture-proof package, Mueller's Foods are always in perfect condition, and full of the natural, delicious flavor of the high quality materials of which they are made.

And then you will understand why so many thousands of families eat Mueller's two or three times a week, not only during Lent, but throughout the year.

Remember to ask for Mueller's, and look on the label for many unusual and tempting ways of preparing these delicious foods.

Blankets still as soft and fleecy as the day you first tucked them in

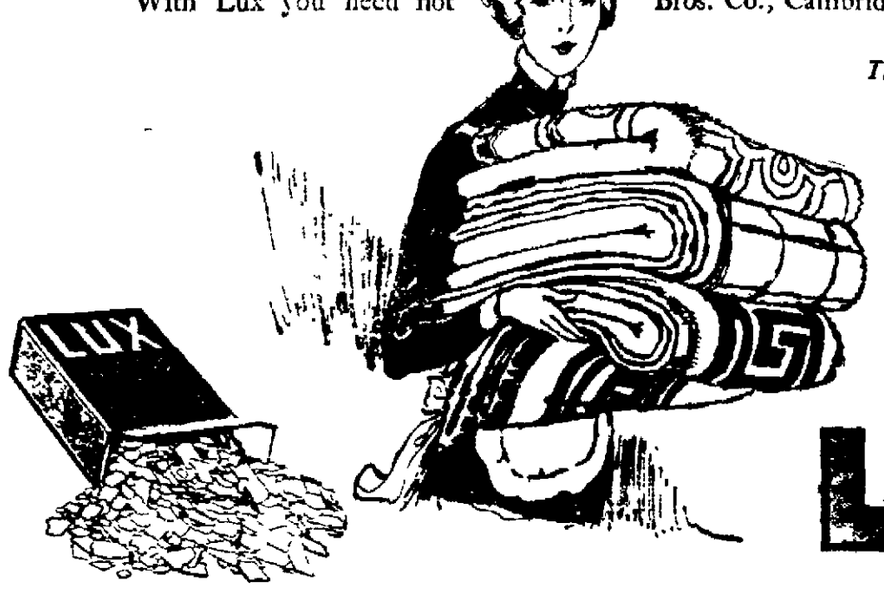

YOU had had one pair ruined. Cake soap—rubbing—and your handsome blankets returned to you matted and shrunken—their softness and fleeciness gone.

They could not stand the old stern methods. Wool is more sensitive than any other fabric, and requires more careful laundering Even the suds from a harsh soap or harsh soap flake will make its delicate scale-like fibres tangle and shrink.

With Lux you need not hesitate to wash your soft, fleecy blankets at the first sign of dinginess.

The creamy, satiny Lux flakes whisk into a thick lather. There is no rubbing to shrink and mat the tiny fibres—not one bit of solid soap to stick to the soft wool and yellow it. Your blankets come from their Lux bath as big and soft as when you put them in.

NEW FROCKS FOR THE MID-SEASON

Fresh Garments Display Note of Individuality—Silhouette Little Changed.

SUITS ARE STILL IN FAVOR

Outfit Gets Away From the Hackneyed Class; Slimness and Chic Cannot Be Approached by Other Outdoor Clothes.

There is no one moment in the course of a whole year when a new, fresh frock looks more delightful than it does just about now, observes a fashion writer in the New York Times. That is because, perhaps, it stands in a class by itself. All the nice, provident, thorough-going people have their winter wardrobes and are wearing them, and are satisfied with them. They look forward to spring—the correct time to wear new clothes. But here and there one sees a totally new frock that suits the season, has a new note of design, and that has given an unmistakable inspiration to its wearer.

About these midseason gowns there is also that accentuated note of individuality which the height-of-the-season creations sometimes lack. These in-between affairs are constructed with a certain single purpose in view. They are done without the press of time behind them. They show the result of more leisure. They are more expressive in consequence.

The frocks now, at this particular moment, being created have much about them that is new, while in other respects they are so faithful to the tradition of the last five years that one wonders how they can keep up the pace. But it is astonishing how far detail can go to change utterly the appearance of a frock. The silhouette for the most part remains as it has been. Of course, we have the elongated lines—lengthened as far as the individuality of the figure will permit. But in other respects the large, outlines of the frock are essentially the same.

Distinguished by Individuality.

Among recent importations are new models distinguished by their pronounced individuality. The outlines of them are straight and comparatively long, but the trimmings are the fine points of interest. The cut of the sleeves (for all sleeves are expressionful these days), the arrangement of the facings and outside edge trimmings, the spots of embroidery, the rows of buttons all contribute to that effect of novelty for which all the woman world is eternally searching, no matter how individuals among the sex may protest to the contrary.

The black dress is one of those daytime dresses made of serge. And an interesting point is that the French designers are using a great deal of black serge just now, instead of the long overworked dark blue. This dress is trimmed with red braid and red buttons in a most effective manner. In the places where the skirt and bodice are slashed there are bindings of the braid and long rows of the buttons. Over the shoulders and inserted in the cuffs are more patterns of the narrow braid, and the belt is one of those fascinating combinations of rings of steel, squares of red leather and infinitesimal bits of chain banded together.

The process of applying red to a dark wool frock is not one easy of accomplishment. But the French are the people who know how to practice just enough restraint in the thing to make the dress a work of art. If there had been one-quarter of a yard more of red upon this frock its style would have been spoiled. The stopping place was reached just as the maximum of effect had been gained.

This dress is of the one-piece variety in its latest guise. There is the long waist, the longer skirt, the sleeves which are loose and floppy. These three features are the ones which have developed in a most marked degree during the last season and they are the ones which show the greatest promise of developing freely during the season to come. We have become more or less used to them. We like them, too. And now for a season in which we shall demonstrate our preferences by producing dresses that more and more perfect the lines which have made themselves popular with the feminine public.

The suit has suffered a decline which it does not at all like. This sort of garment has been accustomed to be the first choice of women for so many seasons that it now resents being pushed into the background as a secondary consideration, after the coat and dress have had their fling.

The suit shows a tendency to step out of the hackneyed class, and to demonstrate itself an individual garment along with all the rest of the productions of the season. The fabric used is a heavy gray wool perlaine, which really is a sort of glorified cheviot, very woolly and thick. Then the border, which is the mark of distinction, is done in a pattern cut out of red flannel and edged with a banding of narrow black fur. It commutes most unsatisfactorily, beyond a doubt, with any dress or coat of the day, and there is no denying the fact that, for some women and for some occasions, the suit is the very best sort of attire that can be found.

Moreover, the suit is peculiarly becoming, especially this sort of dressy French suit. There is a slimness and a chic about it which cannot be approached by any other combination of outdoor clothes. And there are certain women, no matter what the general trend of fashion may be, who will stick to this expression through every change.

Has Full and Loose Sleeves.

This suit has the full and loose sleeves which characterize the latest frocks. It has the rather long peplum for the coat, which brings it into the street-dress class, and it has the high collar which, most certainly, is one of the distinguished features of the outdoor dresses of the present time.

They say that in Paris the muff has been revived and received with great avidity this winter season. If so, we may look for it as a salient part of our next winter's fashions. Certainly it adds a touch to a suit of this sort which cannot be gained in any other way, and it provides, too, that suggestion of warmth without which the suit would be totally impractical.

Another model is a street dress, or coat dress, as they are sometimes called. It is made from a checked blue and red velour with patches of embroidery for trimming. The background of the material is a dark blue, and then the check of red runs through it outlined by a fine pin stripe. The embroidery is done with dark, rich tones upon a blue background.

The cuffs on this dress are its center of interest, for they give that width to the silhouette at the place where it is most necessary if the model is to take a notable place in the fashions of the day. Sleeves of this character are more or less hard to manage gracefully, but when one appreciates the trick of the thing the result more than pays for the trouble involved in learning. Except with a privileged few, the management of big sleeves does not come as a natural born right. More clumsiness can be exhibited in this respect than in many others. But once their handling has become a second thing in one's mind, why then there follows a satisfaction in wearing the garment which is a real surprise.

Use New and Lovely Fabrics.

For the new frocks they are using now and the loveliest of fabrics. Instead of the usual serge there is a French material, woven by Rodier, called kasha cloth. It is a material rich in the weave of a cashmere and the softness of a clipped camel's hair fabric.

Advice for Movie Hero.

The movie hero, carrying the unconscious heroine, was bravely struggling through a terrible storm. At the point of exhaustion he made the cabin, and bursting in laid the girl on a convenient bed. The storm was raging terribly and the cabin door stood wide open. A little chap, lost in his excitement, yelled: "Shut the door."

NOMA FIVE TO PLAY SHOKAN REPRESENTATIVES

On Wednesday night the crack Noma Five, a team composed of former high school stars, will journey to Ashokan to play the team of that place.

The Ashogan team has been winning from all sorts of opposition in the mountain district and expects to add the Noma Five to their already large list of victims.

The Noma Five is a newly organized team and it remains to be seen just how they will work together. Each player is at present listed on some team in the city, so that they surely will be in playing condition. The Noma Five will probably take the court as follows: "Art" Thompson, captain of last year's high school varsity five, and Foster, forwards; V. Van Bramer, center; "Buck" Sears, late of Springfield College, and Becker, guards.

The Noma Five would like to hear from some of the mountain district teams as well as other teams throughout the county. Publish challenges in The Freeman.

The Hope of Eternity.

Transiency is stamped on all our possessions, occupations and delights. We have the hunger for eternity in our souls, the thought of eternity in our hearts, the destination for eternity written on our inmost being, and the need to ally ourselves with eternity proclaimed by the most short-lived cities of time. Either these things will be the blessing or the curse of our lives. Which do you mean that they shall be for you?—Alexander Maclaren.

SHRINERS' BALL UP TO STANDARD

The Shriners not only struck the keynote of novelty at their charity ball on Monday evening, they hit a whole, smashing chord of novelty, some of it not even on their own program. But we'll come to that later. Of course, there was a mammoth crowd out, that goes without saying. There were lots of stunning gowns as well as pretty and becoming ones. The music was good, excellent. And the Industrial Home managers present as well as the Shriners looked exceptionally smiling and happy.

Now, for those novelties. To begin with, quite inadvertently, the Shriners inaugurated a precedent which may cause some trouble to future givers of charity or other kind of balls, just as it did them, Monday night. When the guests were still arriving in large numbers, presto, the lights went out entirely in the big drill shed, caused by a burnt out fuse. Well, just to show that they were equal to all emergencies the orchestra played right along, and the young people had the time of their lives dancing—well, not entirely in the dark because of a little light which trickled in through the armory windows, but in a weird semi-darkness that must have been quite fascinating. And nobody could find fault with the dancers, for the chaperones were all there, as well as the musicians. But a Shriner is always a live wire, and as that was the needed thing, after some ten minutes or more the light came on again and the program began. But having played tricks with the dancers, that pesky fuse, like its predecessor, tried its hand on the entertainers. This time the stunt was put over on the Gloria Trumpeters, and these accomplished musicians trumpeted gloriously on, while the equally accomplished pianist, by the kindly, if uncertain light of countless matches—think of the wasted smokes!—played their accompaniment as needed.

And such a program! No finer program, throughout, has ever been given in this city from any stage, and the immense audience showed its appreciation of the rare treat by their exceedingly enthusiastic applause.

"Ladies first," so we will begin with the Gloria Trumpeters, a quartet of women most picturesque in their real Grecian robes of ivory silk, with shining trumpets uplifted, making a picture as charming as their music, and they are all musicians of the highest order. Moreover, their music was peculiarly acceptable in the great drill hall, and they were indeed generous with their numbers and encores.

Then there was Mlle. Verba, the Belgian soprano, who was in her native land during the German invasion, but, fortunately for the musical world, escaped. She has a coloratura soprano of very rare quality, big, full, commanding and she is an artist, besides having a very pleasing and dignified personality. All of her numbers were applauded to the echo.

As for the "Marvelous Millers," Mr. and Mrs. Miller, they were quite all the name implied. There was dignity and comeliness in the splendid bearing of Mr. Miller, with his crown of silvering hair, and his dancing was indeed "the poetry of motion," and that without many of the "motion" innovations of late years. Mrs. Miller was the absolute complement of her husband, and even without the few whirling dizzy ... which they did "marvelously" ... well, their dancing would have fascinated any audience. This one went quite wild over them.

Now be it understood that there is nothing second-rate—nothing of the second fiddle order—about our local dance orchestras. But, our musicians have not arrived at the solo stage of the game yet.

While the Shea and Armstrong Syncopated Orchestra of Broadway was passing good as an orchestra, they shone brightest in their solo numbers, which added so much to the program. We thought we had heard the last word in xylophone playing before, but their xylophone soloist had a few more words to say when he used two mallets in each hand and played familiar compositions requiring an amazingly rapid tempo, with the full harmonic effect of the four-note chord. He graciously played encore numbers. And the pianist! His playing of a Rubenstein Etude proved his real musical ability and ranked him as an artist as well as an exceptionally fine accompanist. He, too, gave a highly appreciated encore.

Then there were duet and trio numbers by the leader of the orchestra. Mr. First Violin, and two of the horn players, that were clever, funny as fun, musical and altogether entertaining, while a couple of falsetto solos by a roly poly little gentleman put the audience into fits of laughter.

And then everybody danced and danced, and drank lemonade and ate sandwiches and coffee or ice cream and cake, and smoked and really had the time of their lives.

The managers of the Industrial Home will give the last chapter a little later.
